The added value behind the convenience

Imagine a workstation free of HR applications and data bases. All you need to access your information system is your Internet browser. That means no more time spent on maintaining tools. It means increased efficiency because all PCs can be transformed into HR workstations. And because you decide how you want to define access authorisation, you can allow your managers to put information exchange to work.

ADP e-HyperVision

The HR application in a dedicated environment

Controlled decentralisation

As all of your company's PCs can connect with the HR applications, you are free to decentralise the process of gathering payroll variables. High level security is, of course, essential, and in order to ensure secure communication with the payroll system we have selected the standard normally used for financial transactions: 128-bit SSL encryption. The authorisation system allows you to define as many levels as you wish, restricting the users' right of access only to certain functions or data.

History and traceability

We carry out daily and monthly backups and guarantee the availability of a historical record, based on pre-defined criteria. All operations and consultations are traced and can be viewed by the administrator.

Staying on-line and in line with legislation

Just as we ensure the security of your data, we guarantee that your applications will always be available and function efficiently. We also guarantee compliance with legislation and your company's payroll plan at all times. Only outsourcing offers you a constant update of your dedicated resources, ensuring your solution is always in step with your needs.

Cost reduction and transparency

ADP passes on to you best practices and the resulting productivity gains – of up to 30%. Our solution also puts an end to hidden costs. The real costs, which are 100% external, become visible.

Support when you need it, a commitment to results

We make results-based commitments: availability, updates, support. Our on-line service also means accessible and competent call centre, that respects confidentiality.

The lite solution

The e-HyperVision solution does not require the installation of soft or hardware.
